Rounds 2-7 will take place on Saturday, July 24 and will be televised on NHL Network at 8 a.m. PT. The Sharks are currently slated to make their first selection in the first round (7th overall).

The Sharks will host a live streaming broadcast which will take place on Saturday, July 24 during Day 2 of the 2021 NHL Draft. The show, which will air on the Sharks + SAP Center Mobile App and the Sharks Audio Network, will be hosted by the radio voices of the San Jose Sharks and San Jose Barracuda Dan Rusanowsky and Nick Nollenberger. The show is scheduled to begin at approximately 10 a.m. PDT on July 24. Several members of the Sharks organization will appear on the program as Day Two of the Draft is ongoing.

2020 DRAFT RECAP - In 2020, San Jose made nine picks, selecting Ozzy Wiesblatt in the first round (31st overall). The team then followed with two selections in the second round in Thomas Bordeleau (38th overall) and Tristen Robins (56th overall), and proceeded to draft Danil Guschin in the third round (76th overall), Brandon Coe in the fourth (98th overall) and a franchise record four selections in the seventh round (Alex Young, 196th; Adam Raska, 201st; Linus Oberg, 206th; Timofey Spitsеров, 210th). It was the first time in franchise history in which the Sharks selected only forwards in the draft.

LUCKY NUMBER SEVEN - The Sharks will select seventh overall in the upcoming draft, the first time the club can make a pick in the seventh spot. It's the highest draft choice the team has made since Milan Michalek who was drafted sixth overall in 2003. It also can mark the 12th time in which San Jose has made a Top-10 pick, with Timo Meier being the most recent in 2015. Logan Couture is the other current Sharks skater who was drafted by San Jose in the Top-10. Other notable selections at seventh overall include Shane Doan, Jakob Voracek, Mark Scheifele, Darnell Nurse, Jeff Skinner and Bernie Federko.

SHARKS NEAR TOP OF NHL IN DRAFT SUCCESS DESPITE LOWEST AVERAGE DRAFT POSITION

FINDING DIAMONDS IN THE ROUGH – Since Doug Wilson was named Sharks General Manager in 2003, San Jose has made the playoffs 14 times in 17 seasons, second to only Pittsburgh (15). However, consistent regular season success and appearances in the Stanley Cup Playoffs has led to low draft positions. Since 2003, the Sharks own the lowest average draft position of all 31 NHL franchises (128.0 overall). Vancouver, ranked 30th, has the next lowest average at 124.7, four positions higher than San Jose (Chart below color heat-mapped by which range NHL team's average draft selection fall in)

In addition, since 2003, the Sharks are one of only six NHL teams (excluding Vegas Golden Knights) to not hold a Top-3 draft selection and only four NHL teams (excluding Vegas Golden Knights) have held fewer Top-10 picks than San Jose (note, this table is up-to-date through the 2020 NHL Draft).

Despite having selected the lowest average draft position of all 31 NHL teams, San Jose's draft picks rank in the Top-10 in several major statistical categories, including: games played (7th), goals (6th), and points (9th).

SECOND TO NONE – After removing all first-round picks dating back to 2003 for every NHL club, San Jose remains a top-contender in consistent regular season success among players drafted in the second round or later. The Sharks own the second-lowest average draft position (142.43; Vancouver 144.02) among the 31 NHL teams and leap nine spots in assists (3rd), six spots in games played (1st), five spots in points (4th) and remain in sixth for goals compared to the chart above. The Sharks have selected 34 players in the second round or later who have appeared in at least 200 NHL games, and three players were with San Jose in 2020-21 (Marc-Edouard Vlasic, 2nd round; Matt Nieto, 2nd round; Kevin Labanc, 6th round). STRONG SELECTIONS – The Sharks are set to select seventh overall in the 2021 NHL Draft, marking the team's highest selection since 2003, when Doug Wilson took over as General Manager, choosing Milan Michalek with the sixth overall selection. A list of all the players who the Sharks selected in the Top 10 overall dating back to 2003:

2003 Entry	6	Milan Michalek	L	747	208	238	446	394

Also, when breaking down the previous 15 drafts (2005-2019; excluding the 2020 NHL draft as players in the 7-20 range have not appeared in an NHL regular season game), the Sharks have had immense success in selecting players in the mid first round. Among NHL teams between picks 7-20 in the last 15 years, the Sharks draft choices rank tied for second in points-per-game (.60) and rank fifth overall in total points. A look at the Top-10, sorted by overall combined points of selections between No. 7-20 from 2005-2019.

Also, the two defensemen selected by San Jose in this time period, Tyler Wishart - 2006, 16th overall, was traded for Dan Boyle on Jul. 4, 2008 and Mirco Mueller - 2013, 18th overall was dealt for two selections (2017 2nd [BOS] and 4th round [NSH] draft choices), which turned into Mario Ferraro and Scott Reedy, respectively. (San Jose traded the 4th round selection originally acquired along with a 2017 6th round to move up in the draft and select Reedy. NY Rangers acquired the two picks and selected Brandon Crawley with the 4th round selection and Morgan Barron with the 6th round pick).

When specifically looking at the upper range of the mid round selections (No. 7-10), the Sharks picks have accumulated the 4th most points per game played and the 3rd most overall points of any NHL team. A look at the Top-10, sorted by total combined points:

ASSET UTILIZATION – Since 2003, San Jose has used a combination of drafting, free agency and trades to build a team that has amassed the most wins of any NHL team in that timespan (731).

As illustrated above, the Sharks have been successful at finding NHL-caliber players in the draft despite their selection position during Doug Wilson's tenure as General Manager. This becomes highlighted even more when, since 2003, just 41.4% of all players drafted in the NHL draft have gone on to actually play at least one NHL game (and just 21.87% reached the 100 games plateau).

San Jose has been varied in their use of their first-round selections over the last 10+ years, often using them as currency to add franchise-type players or in an attempt to enhance a pending playoff team's chances of Stanley Cup Playoff success. Below is a look at San Jose's usage of their first-round picks since 2007 through the 2020 Draft.

- 2007 – F Logan Couture (9th)

PLAYER ACQUISITION – When selecting at the lowest average position over the course of many years and using some draft selections as currency to acquire key rostered players, the Sharks hockey staff has often needed to be creative in filling out their organization's reserve list.

Over the last several seasons, the Sharks have been extremely aggressive in sourcing the unsigned or undrafted amateur free agent market.

This approach has been fruitful as the team has scouted and signed multiple key players and prospects during that span, often with high competition from other interested NHL teams. Five players that had not previously appeared in the NHL before appearing with the Sharks in 2020-21, including 21 overall since 2014, suited up for San Jose after coming to Team Teal via free agency. This season, Josef Korenar (FA/17), Jeffrey Viel (FA/19), Fredrik Handemark (FA/20), Brinson Pasichnuk (FA/20), and Alexei Melnichuk (FA/20) all made their NHL debuts.

The Sharks have added several undrafted (or drafted and un-signed) prospects/players since prior to the start of the 2013-14 season, including:

FREE AGENT SUCCESS - Since the start of the 2014 calendar year, the Sharks have had immense success in signing undrafted (or drafted and un-signed players) to help continue the run of success for the organization since 2003. Excluding San Jose's 2020-21 undrafted free agent class, the Sharks have signed 36 players in total, in which 21 players have appeared in 1 NHL game (58.3%) and seven have appeared in at least 100 (22.2%). Comparatively, from the 2014-2020 NHL Drafts, NHL clubs in total have witnessed 393 of their own drafted players appear in at least 1 NHL game (26.2%) and 143 skaters play in 100 NHL games (9.5%). A look at San Jose's list below:

More importantly, several of the players listed above have spent time with San Jose's top developmental affiliate, the San Jose Barracuda. Notably, Alexander True, Jacob Middleton and Aaron Dell started on AHL contracts with the Barracuda before signing their first NHL contract with the Sharks. This season, the Sharks have added free agent Zach Sawchenko who earned an NHL contract after starting with the Barracuda on an AHL deal.

EARLY RETURNS FROM 2020-21 – The Sharks witnessed several of their draft prospects continue their successful development in their respective leagues:

- Thomas Bordeleau was one of the most dynamic young skaters in the NCAA, leading freshman skaters in assists, points, assists-per-game (.92) and points-per-game. He ranked sixth in the NCAA in assists and earned points in 10 straight individual games (officially an eight-game streak as he missed two games for USA's World Junior's selection camp) scoring 14 points in that span. By the end of his season, he collected two Sharks Prospect of the Week awards, a Big Ten Third Star (Nov. 25), Rookie of the Month Runner Up for November, and Named Big Ten Freshman of the Year, Big Ten Second Team and Big Ten All-Freshman team.
- Danil Gushchin set career highs in several offensive category this year including goals, assists, points, and game-winning goals (7). He opened his season with seven points in his first three games including a hat-trick, registered a five-game multi point streak from Jan. 22-31 and earned three Sharks Prospect of the Week awards. By the end of the season, he tallied at least one point in 34 of his 46 contests and his longest 'drought' was a two-game streak. He recorded one seven-game point streak, which included assists in six straight, and two separate six-game point streaks on the year and set a franchise record for Muskegon for most career points after scoring his second goal of the game on Jan. 31. He collected 147 points in 139 career games with the club.
- Ozzy Wiesblatt spent some time with the Barracuda (AHL), appearing in six games and scoring three points including another two points in three playoff games, but returned to the WHL to play with the Prince Albert Raiders. He registered 28 points (seven goals, 21 assists) in 23 games and led his team in assists and points. He collected assists in 11 of his final 13 games (three goals, 14 assists) and earned two three-assist contests.
- Tristen Robins also spent a small amount of time with the Cuda, appearing in two contests before resuming his WHL season with the Saskatoon Blades. He recorded 23 points (10 goals, 13 assists) across 16 games and completed his season on a five-game point streak (four goals, six assists). He ranked second on his team in assists and points and was tied for second in goals.
- Brandon Coe saw his OHL season cancelled due to covid restrictions but appeared in his first professional season with the Barracuda. He appeared in 17 games, scoring five points (one goal, four assists) and also registered two assists in the postseason in four contests. He ranked tied for fifth among Barracuda rookies in points.

NEW FACES – San Jose added new free-agent prospects to its collection in 2020-21. Below is a look at a few of the new faces:

- Zachary Sawchenko (G) split time between the San Jose Barracuda (AHL) and the Allen Americans (ECHL) in 2020-21 and also spent some time with the Sharks on the taxi squad. In five games with the Barracuda, he posted a 1-3-0 record with a 2.59 goals-against average and a .914 save percentage. In seven games with Allen, he went 5-2-0 with a 2.55 goals-against average and a .926 save percentage. Sawchenko also split time previously in 2019-20 between San Jose and Allen, playing 13 games with each club. With Allen, he posted an 8-2-3 record with a 2.35 goals-against and a .930 save percentage, leading the team in both categories. With the Barracuda, he was 6-4-2 with a 2.87 goals-against and a .911 save percentage. He ranked third among AHL rookie goaltenders in save percentage (minimum 10 games played) and sixth in goals-against average.
